13th May, If you have neighbours who are causing issues, read this! DEALING WITH A NEIGHBOUR DISPUTE?

Police are contacted regularly to resolve disputes between neighbours for various reasons. Some of the most common disputes are about fences, trees/plants, noise, children's behaviour, dogs and invasion of privacy. Often the best way of resolving disputes is to approach your neighbour directly and to discuss the problem politely. However, if this does not work or you don't feel confident enough to face your neighbour on your own, it may be appropriate to contact your local Community Justice Centre (CJC). CJC can help resolve disputes through mediation. The service is free, convenient and confidential. Police will take action if they detect an offence has been committed, otherwise they will refer you to CJC. For further information contact CJC on 1800 990 777 or visit www.cjc.nsw.gov.au

9th May: MANLY police raided a unit complex in Manly on Thursday and recovered six bicycles, six bicycle frames and 11 wheels, highlighting the prevalence of bicycle theft in Manly. Relevant to Ku-ring-gai and Hornsby residents? Yes - Take adequate precautions to prevent bikes being stolen:

Some bicycles were left for days or weeks at a time without being checked and it was only when the owner returned to collect their bike that they realised it had been stolen, by which time the bike could have been stripped or taken outside the area. Photograph your bicycle. Record your bike's serial number. Engrave your bike with some form of identification, such as a phone number or driver's licence number. You can borrow an engraver from the Crime PreventionOfficer at Hornsby Police Station 9476 9723 or from your local Neighbourhood Watch group.

9th May: WARNING It is suspected that cables are being cut to facilitate the use of stolen or fraudulent credit cards at shopping centres and service stations in parts of the metropolitan area. The cables are generally located in a pit in the near vicinity to the shopping centres. Cutting of these cables has a significant effect on telecommunications to areas much broader than the shopping centre itself. Offenders may use props, equipment or clothing to appear to be working in an official capacity. If you observe any activity in telecommunication pits near shopping centres and service stations, contact the police if you have doubts about the bonafides of persons involved.

8th May: As NSW police have been saying for years; if you see something, say something. Well the message is actually world-wide. Here is a bill board from New York. Obviously we use 000 for a crime occurring now in Australia. Our equivalent number for suspicious behaviour is Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000.

7th May: CCTV in public areas, A recent court ruling places the use of CCTV systems installed and or run by councils on notice. Agree with the decision or not.

http://au.news.yahoo.com/thewest/a/-/breaking/16997341/cctv-use-in-spotlight-after-privacy-ruling/ .

The New South Wales Government is reviewing a decision that raises doubts about the legality of CCTV cameras installed by local councils. Shoalhaven City Council was forced to switch off CCTV cameras in the centre of Nowra, south of Wollongong, after the NSW Administrative Decisions Tribunal ruled they breached the Privacy Act. The tribunal was not satisfied the signage near the cameras adequately informed people about their privacy implications, and ruled the council had not shown that filming people was reasonably necessary to prevent crime.

8th May, Domestic Violence anywhere is deplorable and Kuring-gai LAC treat these incidents seriously. New App for Domestic Violence - Aurora. "A few times I tried to grab the landline but he would get there before me and rip it out of the wall."

Situations like this have prompted the NSW Government to launch a discreet smart phone app to allow people experiencing domestic and family violence to quickly call for help and be located by police via GPS. Minister for Family and Community Services Pru Goward says the named Aurora — which means "hope" — will give just that to victims of domestic violence. "This app is the first of its kind in the world to combine information with access to help services, the ability to create a trusted network of friends who can be easily contacted with an agreed message and a GPS system to 'call-for-help' alert recipients of the sender's location," Minister Goward said. The free app was developed in consultation with the NSW Police Force, with input from experts from the domestic and family violence sector including the NSW Women's Refuge movement.

7th May, Children safety. Over the past few years across Sydney there have been numerous reported incidents of children being approached by 'people not known to the children' mainly out in public areas, usually before and after school hours. Although there have been no recent reports here at Kuring-gai LAC it is a timely reminder to be cautious and aware of these incidents. The link below has information for parents and children in relation to identifying safe places and safe people. Please talk with your friends and family and communicate with your children, talk to them about who are the safe people in their lives, where are the safe places they can go when they are feeling scared, uncomfortable or threatened. Don't think these incidents are rife in our area, it is just that school has now returned and this is just a timely reminder nothing more.

Finally we don't refer to the warnings as 'stranger danger' anymore - there are 'safe places and safe people'.

7th May, Scare tactics and warnings spread by the public. Please check the facts and ulterior motives before spreading these warnings further. If you go to a website called SNOPES they have most of the urban myths and legends. See attached weblink: http://www.snopes.com/computer/internet/angela.asp

A chain letter warning about the "Talking Angela" iOS app is being unwittingly spread by Facebook users, presumably with the thinking of "better safe than sorry" rather than "maybe I should just check the facts before forwarding this scare onto my friends". The truth is that

"Talking Angela" appears to be entirely benign, and there are no obvious privacy concerns that differentiate it from thousands of other iPhone apps. Indeed, the "Talking Angela" app is no different from other similar popular children's apps from reputable iOS developer Out Fit 7 Ltd, including "Talking Tom Cat", "Talking Ben the Dog" and "Talking Gina the Giraffe".

From the North Shore Times 08 May:

KILLARA Police are looking for a thief who broke into a house on The Crest and stole about $3000 in cash. Police said the robber broke into the house through a ground-floor door between April 24 and 26.

There has been a 'Warning' message circulating on Facebook recently regarding a 19-year old girl named Lauren who tells her story of an unmarked police car trying to pull her over as she is driving to visit a friend.

Lauren is suspicious of this vehicle and thankfully remembers what her parents had told her about dialling 112 from her mobile phone. She dials 112 because 000 does not work without a signal. She is immediately able to have direct contact to the 'Police Dispatcher' to confirm that she is being pulled over by a genuine cop. The surprised dispatcher tells her to keep driving because the car behind her is not a real police car! Within minutes, real officers intercept the imposter who, when arrested, turns out to be a convicted rapist and Lauren lives to tell her story. Simply not true!

Now for the FACTS:

Triple Zero (000) is Australia's primary telephone number to call for assistance in life threatening or time critical emergency situations. 112 is an international standard emergency number which can only be dialled on a digital mobile phone. Dialling 112 simply redirects you to the same Triple Zero (000) call service. There is NO advantage to dialling 112 over Triple Zero (000). As for reception: if you have absolutely no reception, you cannot make a call to any number. If there is phone reception, but not your carrier, your call will roam onto another carrier's network and then connect.

If you are driving and see Red and Blue lights behind you, you must pull over and stop. Please click on the link for the full legislation:

Protection on Public Transport

There have been a number of incidents on the North Shore Line where train travellers have been the victims of assault and robbery. Here are a few hints:

- Travel near the guard's compartment especially if you are alone and the other carriages are empty.
- Don't fall asleep and leave your bag for easy snatching.
- Don't leave your bag on the seat close to the aisle.
 Put it between you and the window with your arm through the strap handles.
- Carry a mobile phone.
- If you see anything suspicious or feel uncomfortable then move away to a safer area of the train and inform the guard.

The Salvation Army's RED SHIELD APPEAL Door-knock, Saturday/Sunday May 25th/26th.

Why are older people especially vulnerable to becoming victims of fraud? A new UCLA study indicates that an important clue may lie in a particular region of the brain that influences the ability to discern who is honest and who is trying to deceive us. Older people, more than younger adults, may fail to interpret an untrustworthy face as potentially dishonest, the study shows. The reason for this, the UCLA life scientists found, seems to be that a brain region called the anterior insula, which is linked to disgust and is important for discerning untrustworthy faces, is less active in older adults. More
